Haddonfield is a small village in the United States. It is not far from Chicago. There are five buses to Chicago everyday, but there is only one train. There are not many people on the train at five o'clock in the morning. The church is in the middle of the village. In front of the church there is a park. There are many buildings around the park: the bank, the post office, the supermarket, the bus station, the police station, the library, and a garage. There is a river behind the church. There is a bridge across the river. It's a small village isn't it? But there is no traffic, no noise and no pollution.
